

Way to Work An Introduction for Employers

Way to Work is a national push to help even more people benefit from the record number of vacancies available in the jobs market, including many in sectors vital to national recovery.

At the same time as record vacancies, we have hundreds of thousands of people on Universal Credit who are actively looking to make a fresh start in work. This means there are many talented, work-ready people on our books who are eager to take on your roles.

This campaign will help people move swiftly back into the world of work and help you fill the roles you and our economy need too.

How will we help you?

If you're looking to fill a vacancy, we will offer you a named employer adviser in your local Jobcentre to support your journey with us, or a dedicated national account manager if you're a national employer.

We have a range of recruitment services that can help you as an employer, including:

- ▶ the opportunity to be introduced to people looking for work through a variety of platforms, including recruitment days and other events
- ▶ working closely with you to simplify and shorten the recruitment process, so we can put forward better matched candidates to interview
- ▶ help setting up work trials to give you the opportunity to see what potential recruits have to offer
- ▶ advice about offering work experience and apprenticeships
- ▶ support from other employment schemes including sector-based work academy programmes and business mentoring
- ▶ support if you employ someone with a disability (Access to Work)
- ▶ advice and guidance on employing someone with a disability or health condition

The UK Government has already invested over £400 billion into the Plan for Jobs – and it's working. We've helped tens of thousands of people retrain, build new skills and get back into work.
